To the Federal Communications Commission,

I do not understand why you are considering allowing even more profanity and nudity on network television. My husband and I stopped watching television two years ago because we were appalled at how much of this is already being allowed. There is no need for this useless language, and people do not need to see naked women on network television. If they want that, they should go rent a movie. I used to enjoy watching television, but with the way society is today, I don't miss it one bit. To have this sort of trash visible to our children is a sign of bad things to come for the American people. Please do not change your standards. There is no need for it.
